The Long March to Berlin: Windows of discourse fast closing on Ambassador Usman

Thursday, June 21, 2012 6:08

- Report by African Heritage Magazine Germany

*“Ambassador Usman unqualified to serve in Germany ”

On 14th June 2012 the gates of the Embassy of Nigeria Berlin was closed and protected by a team of stern looking German Policemen. At first, one was lost as to the real reason for heavy presence of the Police but on a closer look, the non-stop blaring of music and intermittent choruses of the Concerned Nigeria Group explained the anomaly. Essentially, the police was there to ensure that the right to protest was not denied. African Heritage Magazine Germany was on ground to cover the event purely as a media establishment.

It was an appointed date though turn-out was somewhat on the low side, probably because of a few logistical shortfalls according to the organizers. A summation of their reasons for the demonstration is wrapped around the administrative style of the current Nigeria Ambassador to Germany – Amb. Abubakar Abdul Usman-which they listed in, demands thus; Nigerians must have access to their leaders.
